CHRISTMAS DAY.

The streets yesterday presented a quiet appearance, only disturbed now and then by the passage f some ragamuffin troop of "fantastics," or some harmless target company. The public offices were closed. giving the City, County, and State employés a holiday. Business was generally suspended, the only notable exception to the rule being A. T. Stewart's stores. Many of the Sunday and charitable schools held their festivals and gave thousands of poor outcasts a glimpse of a better and happier life.

THE ORPHANS' FAIR.

The children of the Union Home and School, nearly 200 little boys and girls, orphans of soldiers and sailors, were brought to the Armory of the 71st Regiment yesterday, where the Fair for their benefit is now in progress, and were allowed to enjoy themselves in viewing the wonders of the exhibition, from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until a late hour at night. During the day, at the Home, they partook of a bountiful Christmas dinner, and were supplied with needed articles of clothing. Their afternoon entertainment included stripping the sweetmeats and knick-knacks from two Christmas trees, and listening to singing by Madame de Lussan and the choir of St. Stephen's Church, and playing by the Fort Hamilton Band.

The managers have provided numerous additional attractions to the Fair this week. For the amusement of children a troop of performing dogs has been engaged. together with a professional magician. Miss Cella Terry will sing one evening during this week. The Art Gallery, consisting in part of pictures received from the Hebrew Fair, is well worth a visit. Bierstadt, Hart, Coleman, and other well-known artists, have given valuable pictures of their own painting to be raffled for. Gen. McClellan, Gen. Sherman, and Gov. Hoffman are each expected at the Fair on some evening before the close The voting for the sword is going on briskly; and valuable prizes are every evening won in the lotteries.

THE FIVE POINTS MISSION.

At this mission, on the site of the "Old Brewery" in Worth-st., more than 650 children were pleasantly entertained yesterday afternoon. The upper ad of the chapel had been curtained off with bunting, and an imitation fire place, with fender and andirons, had been ingeniously arranged for the descent of Santa Claus. The children crowded into the chapel at 1 o'clock, and were so eager and excited that the Superintendent of the Day-School, Mrs. Vanakin, found difficulty in restraining them. After several carols and hymns had sung, the Superintendent, the Rev. James N. Shaffer, read to the children what purported to be a genuine letter from Santa Claus, explaining the difficulties which he encountered in descending the stove-pipes of the present day, and expressing his approval of the old-fashioned fire-place which had been set up in the chapel. Then there was a sound of sleigh-bells, and in a moment an oldish gentleman, dressed in furs and high buskins, descended the chimney amid the wildest excitement on the part of the children, and proceeded to distribute his wares, assuring his audience, with mock solemnity, that each one should have something, as his sleigh outside was well supplied. Each child received a present and a bag of boutons, raisins, and nuts. Dr. J. Littig personated Santa Claus. In addition to this entertainment, the ladies connected with the Mission distributed supplies among the families of their pupils.

THE FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

The managers of the Five Points House of Industry entertained the children under their charge yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the institution. The preliminary services included fanthems, declamations, recitations, and calisthenic exercises by the children and addresses by the Rev. Mr. Mingins, Mr. Morris K. Jesup, and the Superintendent, Mr. Barnard. At 2 o'clock a dinner was served in the play-room, where four tables were spread for 375 children. After the dinner the children returned to the chapel and gathered around a Christmas tree. The teachers distributed the gifts, no one being forgotten. The chapel was tastefully decorated, the walls being fostooned with evergreens and ornamented with Scriptural mottoes. A pleasant feature was the old woman in a shoe, personated by a little girl. Ida Pahoud, who sat in a capacious brogan and received liberal contributions from the guests who were present. THE COLORED HOME.

The 220 inmates of the Colored Home, in Sixty-fifth-st., below First-ave., were treated by the Board of Managers yesterday noon to a plentiful Christpoard of Managers yesteraay hoos to a planta Cara-mas dinner. Among the immates are a man 107 and a woman 104 years old. The majority are women, and there are also a few children. To-morrow evening relig-ious service will be held at the chapel of the Home, with a Christmas-tree presentation. THE ELEVENTH WARD LODGING-HOUSE.

A pleasant word should be spoken of this olent mission, which the Children's Aid Society h ve made emphatically a "refuge for the needy" of the I eventh Ward. Christmas brought to these poor boys is east one day of happiness, for it filled their hungry mouths with a host of good things. During the years good boys have been sheltered at the Lodge, an in rease of 100 over the last year; 17,000 lodgings have been 1. hished, and 14,114 meals provided. Since the 1st of ovember, 1869, 55 boys have been sent to homes in the country, and 17 have been returned to their parents. The boys have been encouraged to save their dimes and scimies, and have deposited this year nearly $800. An permies, and have deposited this year nearly $800. An industrial school is connected with the mission, which is attended by about 100, and presided over by Miss A. Van Vorst and Miss Flora Neely.

The boys celebrated Caristmas last evening in the presence of a number of friends. The exercises, conducted by Superintendent Dupuy, were opened with the chanting of the Lord's Prayer, succeeded by an address of welcome. Christmas songs, sung by the boys, were followed by an address from a former protege of the Children's Aid Society, who was taken West, and is now studying for the ministry at Yale College. Songs arging self-dependence were sung by several boys, accompanied on the piano by a teacher. An address, commending economy in daily life, followed from Mr. Dupuy, after which the lays descended to a turkey dinner and a Christmas tree. THE JUVENILE GUARDIAN SOCIETY.

The Industrial School, at No. 101 St. Mark's-Place, under the charge of the Juvenile Guardian Society, enjoyed a merry festival yesterday. Six hundred children of various ages between 4 and 12 attacked and stripped the Christmas trees, and celebrated their vic tory in songs, recitations, and humorous dialogues. The gifts to the children consisted generally of articles of clothing, the prominent exceptions being 100 dolls, presented by Dudley Field, President of the Society. Ad dresses were made by the Rev. D. L. Robertson, the Hon dresses were made by the Rev. D. L. Robertson, the Hon. Simon Stevens, and the Rev. E. F. Edwards, and by the Lev. Adam Groebe in German.

The school-room at No. 207 Bowery was beautifully desorated with Christmas evergreens, and was crowded by 500 children, to whom the prospect of music and a present proved great temptation. Hundreds of dresses, cachs, caps, and shawls were distributed, besides a great variety of toys. Addresses were made by the Rev. D. L. Robertson, Superintendent of the school, and the Rev. D. L. Robertson, Superintendent of the school, and the Rev. D. Mr. Petry. The amount expended for presents to the school was $500. The average attendance at the two schools combined is 500. The average attendance at the two Mission Sunday-schools, under the charge of R. H. Wilkinson and William H. Orton, amounts to 450.

The Juvenile Guardian Society receives $10,000 a year from the State, $5,000 from the County Controller, and $5,000 from private subscriptions. These amounts form its only resources for carrying on its work in the most densely populated portion of the city.

ON THE ISLANDS.

ON THE ISLANDS. At the Nursery on Randall's Island there are about 400 children of both sexes and various ages from 2 to 16 years. Early in the morning visitors began to arrive, and at 10 o'clock, the hour for beginning the exercises, upward of 300 were present. An address was made by the Rev. Mr. Willetts, chaplain, after which a dinner was given to the children. At 1 o'clock Christmas presents were distributed. The rest of the day was spent by the visitors inspecting the institution, under the guidance of Warden Stephens. The visitors were conveyed to and from the island in a small boat manned

On Ward's Island are the Lunatic Asylum, with 125 inmates, and the Home for the Orphans of Emigrants, with 250 children of all ages and various nationalities. A good dinner was provided yesterday, and as the children sat at table they expressed their delight in a Babel of different languages, among which the German predominated. After dinner toys were distributed to all the children, and to most of the lunatics.

The Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island now contains 610 prisoners, of whom 100 are women. They were provided yesterday with an excellent dinner, including many delicacies.

At the Pearl-st. New Sailors' Home, which is under the supervision of the Episcopal Society, with Charles Blake as manager, a dinner was given to the 50 inmates, and preseuts were distributed. It was noticed that the old sailors would push the roast turkey saide, saying: "Shipmate, heave that cora-beef down this way: I never could go heave that corn-beef down this way; I never could go turkey since I was a boy."

The Episcopal Society has also a floating church and a mission school at No. 34 Pike-st., the Rev. H. F. Roberts in charge, and here Christmas presents were distributed to about 50 children.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVALS. The Germans of this city patronized yesterday four theatrical performances, 11 concerts, and 32 Yesterday was celebrated at Bellevue Hospital by giving to the patients an excellent dinner of turkey and chicken. In the evening an entertainment was given to those convalescent enough to enjoy it. At the Wilson Mission on Avenue A, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, 400 children belonging to the Sunday-school were made glad with presents of candy and fruit. Addresses were delivered by the pastor, the Rev. Livingstone Willard, and others. The Sunday-school of the Washington-square

The Christmas services of the Industrial Sunday, and Parochial school of St. John's Church will take place in St. John's chapel this afternoon at 25 o'clock.

At St. Barnabas Mission, No. 303 Mulberryst. last evening, 30 children, mostly girls, from three to six years of age, were made happy by the distribution of presents from a Christmas tree. A nursery has been established at this Mission, where working women can leave their infants during hours of labor.

Christmas festivities were held yesterday at the House of the Good Shepherd, foot of Ninety-eighthst., East River; St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, East Eighty-sixth-st., corner of Avenue A, and at the New-York Juvenile Asylum, One-hundred-and-seventy-sixth-

The children of Olivet Chapel on Second-st., a branch of the City Mission, came together 1,000 strong, a fig. o'clock 'esterday morning, and received a liberal supply of candies, takes, and other gifts. To each girl was given a doll, and to each boy a ball. Refreshments were provided for all, and addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. Taylor, the Rev. M. N. Hutchinson, and the Rev. G. J. Mingins.

About 30 inmates of the Water-st. Home enjoyed a festival last evening in the parlors above the meeting room. An illuminated Christmas tree, containing useful presents for all, was placed upon the table. After the singing of carols and hymns, in the presence of a few of the friends of the Home, addresses were delivered by the Rev. Wm. H. Boole and Charles Kinney, and the gifts were then distributed.

Capt. Richardson, the principal patron of the free day-school of the Dover-st. Mission, at the corner of Dover and Water-sts., was presented at the prayer meeting of the Mission on Christmas Eve, by the pupils of the school, with a bag full of Christmas gifts, consisting of a hymn book, candies, apples, and oranges. A Christmas tree will be presented to the Mission children to-morrow evening.

A bountiful dinner was served yesterday to the prisoners at the Tombs, by order of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction. The bill of fare consisted of chickens, stewed beef, mutton, pork, vegeta-bles of various kinds, and bolled rice. The freedom of the corridors was allowed the prisoners for several hours. Visitors were admitted in the early part of the day. Many of these brought Christmas diamers for relatives and friends, awaiting examination or trial.

IN BROOKLYN.

The stores, public offices, and courts were closed yesterday, and people seemed bent on making the most of the holiday. The cold wind made fireside enjoyments preferable, and, in consequence, the streets were almost deserted during the afternoon and evening. Sev almost deserted during the afternoon and evening. Several target companies paraded the thoroughfares, and went to the suburbs to contend for prizes. About 80 arrests were made for drunkenness.

The 300 scholars of the New-England Congregational Church Sunday-School, in South Ninth-st. (E. D.), were made happy by presents from a Christmas tree well laden with toys, books, and bonbons. The children sang Carristmas carols, and short addresses were made by the Pastor, the Rev. J. H. Brodt, and the Superintendent, C. Emmons.

IN NEW-JERSEY.

Three years ago half a dozen boys were sufficient to sell all the newspapers vended in the streets of Jersey City; yesterday 228 sat down to a Christman dinner given by the proprietors of The Evening Journal. At 2 o'clock the boys assembled in Cooper's Hall, and in a few moments were ushered into a large dining-room. Among the many gentlemen present were Geo. Warren and Dr. Hornblower of the Legislature, and W. H. Sutton, Superintendent of the Howard Mission Sundayschool. Major Z. K. Pangborn made a short speech to the boys, reminding them that they would not always be newsboys, but that they semetime might themselves control newspapers, and expressing the hope that if they ever did they would not forget the newsboys that then would be, but would extend to them that help and sympathy which he hoped always to give to his hearers. Addresses were made by other gentlemen, and, after two hours of happiness, the party separated.

The holiday was very generally observed at Paterson, all the minufactories and most of the stores being closed. The Methodist Fair at the Opera House was well attended. A procession of "Fantasticals" took place in the morning, and the annual ball of Neptune Engine Company No. 2 was given in the evening. school. Major Z. K. Pangborn made a short speech t

SPORTS ON THE ICE

For several years past there has not been large a crowd of visitors to the Park Skating Ponds as attended yesterday. A furor for the sport seemed to have seized all classes, for every pond which presented any facilities for skating was crowded. Probably not less than 50,000 persons were on the ice at Central Park The crowd was greatest in the afternoon, the ice being black with people at all three of the lakes. Thick and strong as the ice was, so great was the pressure that it bent with the load and gave way on the edges. "Danger oards" were in great demand, and the Park Police were kept busy in warning persons off the weak places. Last night's cold strengthened the ice much, and to-day better port will be afforded, as the rush will not be so great. Early morning is the best time for skating on the Park

The Curling season of 1870-71 was opened yesterday at Central Park, the members of the prominent clubs of the metropolis appearing in large numbers on the eastern end of the center lake in the Park, which has been se aside for their special use. THE LUTHERAN CHURCH AND THE RELIGIOUS FESTIVALS. To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: It has been, for many years past, the practice of some of our city papers, on the day after the celebration of any of the great festivals of the Church, to give some account of their observance by the two most prominent denominations, the Episcopal and Roman Catholic. But the Lutherans, who are not a whit behind ither of the churches just named in the observance of the church-festivals, have been pained to note how utterly they have been ignored on such occasions. This utterly they have been ignored on such occasions. This omission has, of course, been unintentional, and has probably arisen from two causes. First, the Lutheran Church is very unobtrusive; devotes herself noiselessiy to the great work which she has undertaken; discourages everything like sensational preaching, and allows no operamusic in her choirs; and, Secondly, in most of the Lutheran churches of this city Divine wor ship is conducted entirely in the German language.

There are in this city and its vicinity at least 25 Evangelical Lutheran churches. I would direct attention to the claims of Lutheranism to the respectful consideration of our fellow-citizens, and the kind notice of our leading journals, at seasons when the religious exercises of other denominations are noticed and commented upon. It is not praise that we covet; but we feel that we do not deserve to be entirely ignored, as though we were not in existence.

Although nearly all the Lutheran Churches in and about New-York are exclusively German, there are also those in which Divine worship is conducted altogether in the English language. Of these, the Church of the Holy Trinity, possessing a large and beautiful audience-chamber, is situated in Twenty-first-st., between Fifth and aves, quite near the latter, and thus easily access persons or families living in the central part of y. This church belongs to a young congruent of our city. This church belongs to a young congrecation by whom it was opened not quite three years ago. There has been a gradual but steady increase in tattendance, and the many strangers who visit it at always made heartily welcome.

THE CITY HALL PARK STATUE OF WASHINGTON UNVAILED YESTERDAY AT TRENTON.

The residents of Trenton, N. J., were in a patriotic fervor yesterday over an event that carried back the minds of all to the period antecedent to the recent war. The statue of the Father of His Country, which formerly occupied a place in the City Hall Park New-York, was unvailed before a large concourse of spectators. The day was the anniversary of the defeat the Hessians by Gen. Washington at Trenton, which victory has not been commemorated since the breaking out of the last war. The statue had been retouched, and presents a rejuvenated appearance. It was placed in a niche prepared expressly for it in the new Washington Market, upon ground where the battle of December 26, 1776, was fought.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. ALBERT BARNES.

The Rev. Albert Barnes died quite suddenly in Philadelphia, on Saturday afternoon, aged 72 years. His death was not only unexpected, but quite painful in the circumstances. He left home Saturday afternoon, in fine health and spirits, to pay a pastoral visit. On the way he was seized with some serious difficuity, and only succeeded with his daughter's assistance in reaching his destination. Upon entering the house, he scated himself beside his daughter, and, before any one else entered the room, his head dropped back on his chair and he fell to the floor lifeless. The reverend gentleman thus passed away leaves more than a national reputation in cotemporaneous homiliti-cal literature. He was born at Rome, in this State, Dec.

1, 1798, and after following his father's occupation of a tanner, he entered Hamilton College, and was graduated in 1820-at the age of 22-with marked honors, conspic-uous alike for scholarship and capacity. His college career was followed by a theological course at Princeton, N. J., where he brilliantly supplemented his studies with a therough ministerial training. License to was granted him in 1824, and he was ordained and installed paster of the Presbyterian Church at Morristown, N. J., in 1825. Here he remained five years, doing a work of surpassing results for opportunities so limited. From here his reputation preceded him to Philadelphia, when in 1809 he received an urgent call to the First Presbyterian Church. Over this church Mr. Barnes presided until very recently, when age and infirmity compelled him to relinquish the burdens of an

The circulation of his " Notes on the New Testament " is said to have reached a million volumes. They were extensively translated, and have been adopted by many biblical students of the Old World. Two other of his works, "A Life of St. Paul," and " Evidences of Christianity," had a wide circulation. He also published able works on Episcopacy, on the "Scriptural Views of Blavery," and other subjects, beside numerous contributions to periodicals and occasional essays and discourses.

With the diligent habits of the scholar he found time to mingle the pleasant practices of friendliness, and endeared himself to his large congregation by the candor and heartiness of his association with them. He continued until his latest day to interest himself in his old parishioners, for whom he occasionally preached in his former pulpit.

Mr. Francis A. Clarry, an old and esteemed citizen of Brooklyn, died on Sunday, after a protracted illness, at the age of 41. Mr. Clarry was born in this city, where he also carried on his business. Ten years ago he entered into partnership with Dr. James Rellly of Sprucest. as pictorial printers, and soon amassed an ample competence. Social, genial, and liberal, Mr. Clarry madmany friends. MUSIC. THE MESSIAH. The annual Christmas performance of "The ssiah" was given by the New-York Harmonic Society last night at Steinway Hall, before a rather slim andience, and with a slim orchestra and chorus. About one hundred members of the society took part is the performance. Prof. Ritter, who has been their con ctor for several years past, resigned a short time ago, and Dr. James Pech was borrowed for this occasion. Miss Brainerd, Miss Hutchings, Mr. Simpson, and Mr. Joseph Jewett were the solo singers—all of them old friends, so familiar in their respective parts that criticism upon them is uncalled for. We thought all showed a their voices of the hard work they on Christmas day. The orchestra was not only weak, but coarse and careless. The chorus was unusually correct but also unusually ineffective, and its performance pever rose above the level of respectable dullness. The only point that calls for special notice in the representation is a change in the order of some of the numbers, so as to bring the "Hallelujah" chorus at the has yet undertaken to reconstruct Beethoven's Sym-phonics on this plan, or Meyerbeer's grand operas, Shakespeare's plays, or Milton's Paradise Lost; out if the effectiveness or even the merit of a particular passage is to determine its place in the composition of which it forms a part-without any reference to its meaning-we see no reason why all the great works of genius should not be twisted and turned upside down. The absurdity of this change in 'The Messiah" is so plain that we have hardly the patience to discuss it. Handel's oratorio is not a patch work of songs and choruses, but a sacred drama constructed with elaborate art. It is logically divided into three parts—we might almost say three acts. The first represents the coming of the Savior; the second his mis-sion on earth and the establishment and triumph of Christianity; the third the glorified reign of the Messiah in heaven after the trumpet has given forth its final sound and death has been swallowed up in victory. Each part has its appropriate and peculiar music imbued with a color ing distinct from the others. In the first we have the comforting voice of the prophet announcing the fulfill-ment of the desire of all nations; the joy of the faithful who have held fast to the promises; the exquisite simplicity in which Handel tells the wenderful story of the Nativity; and the tender invitation to the weary and heavily laden to come unto Him who will give them rest. In the second part we are shown the Lamb of God despised and rejected, bearing our griefs, and cut off for our transgressions. We see how beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel which he has left us, and we are reminded that though the nations furiously rage to gether the Lord will break them with a rod of iron, and the kingdom of this world shall become the kingdom of Christ. Then it is that the splendid "Hallelujah! for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth," bursts forth, to celebrate the triumph of the Christian Church. The last part is devoted entirely to death and the resurrection—the final triumph of all. It begins with the soprano air, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," a tender and thoughtful meditation upon the life that is beyond the grave, and the thought grows through successive numbers, becoming more and more ecstatic, until it breaks into exulting strains of "Thanks to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ," and the oratorio closes with the song to the Lamb that sitteth upon the throne—the song which the apostie in his vision heard the redeemed souls chanting in the New Jerusalem. This se-quence of ideas is perfect, both in the text and the music. What shall we say, then, of the Vandal who believes he understands the meaning of this drama bet ter than Handel-one of the most dramatic of all composers—and disfigures the second and third parts till there is no meaning left in them! Just look at the preposterous arrangement. After the tenor air, Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron," describing the overthrow of the enemies of the Church, the author of the reformed Messiah places the quartet, "Since by man came death!"—which, in such a position has no sense and no musical effect either-and then goes on with the other fragments of the Resurrection music, even to the song of the glorified saints, and the "Amen" chorus which, if there is any significance in words or in musical phrases, ought to end the performance. The close is so obvious after this chorus that it is a positive shock to see the conductor to take up his baton and go on. Having led us into heaven, he now goes back to sing of death ("I know that my Redeemer liveth"), which was rightfully the introduction to

NORTH CAROLINA. THE IMPEACHMENT TRIAL POSTPONED UNTIL JANUARY 30.

Chief-Justice Pearson appeared on Friday noon, in the Senate Chamber of North Carolina, and or-gautzed the Bigh Court of Impeachment for the trial of Gov. Holden. The managers on the part of the House of Representatives appeared at the bar of the Court, and manded that the Court take process sgainst W. W. It charges the Legislature with the purpose to "let loose their marderous bands" upon the negro, comparing the Democrata and Conservatives to Haman, the colored members of the Legislature to Mordecal, and the great body of the colored people to the Jews of old.

His answer is as follows: "After giving this subject not only a careful, but a most anxious consideration, I have been driven to the conclusion that these three amendments are in fact, and will be held in law, fixed parts of the Constitution, as binding upon the States and people as the original provisions of that instrument. This position he maintains by showing that the political department of the Government, having power to do so, has proclaimed these amendments under due form of law, and that the Surreme Court has only judicial, not political, power. THE DRIFT OF POLITICAL DISCUSSION.

The Tallahassee Floridian, a Democratic journal, finds a strange reason for congratulating its readers on the success of its party, which, according to its estimates, is now assured. Whether the result will be what the following words suggest, or not, the desire to en-the following words suggest, or not, the desire to encourage immigration evinced by the writer is commendable. The Editor says:

"The thousands of Northern people who have been ready to come down here, and who have been deterred by the possible continuance in power of the present Radical extravagants, now see that the time is approaching when they can safely make their home here, and securely invest their capital in agriculture and manufactures. Even now our State is feeling the benefit of this assured state of things. Our State once freed from Radical rule, and prosperity will surely and rapidly follow."

"The Distablesch Disconted discussing the San

The Pittsburgh Dispatch, discussing the San Domingo debate, says: "Mr. Sumner has no right to assume that a war will grow out of this transaction, or day and Saturday, the sales at the sake stores excelling those of any previous year.

On Long Island all the cars to the Park were crowded with skaters. Fully 5,000 people visited the Capitoline pend, a large number being ladies. In the afternoon and evening a band of music added to the attractions. At the Union Pond a band discoursed music all day, and the ice was in fine condition. At the Brooklyn Rink at night, some fine displays by the experts of the Brooklyn Clab were noteworthy. To-day there will be a new sheet of the programme. We are not aware that a war will grow out of this transaction, or to affirm that, should it come, the President will act without reference to Congress. Such an assumption, with its accompanying charge, is a claring and unmanly insulf, and Mr. Sumner, despite the services he has rentered to the Brooklyn Clab were noteworthy. To-day there will be a new sheet of with its accompanying charge, is a claring and unmanly insult, and Mr. Sumner, despite the services he has rendered the Republican party and the country, will not be sustained in off ring it. "In this connection it is not out of place to remark that Mr. Sumner for years past has attempted to dictate the poincy of the Executive of the nation, and, when he could not, to embarrass and oppose it. Astute men feared trouble between him and President Lincoln on the subject of reconstruction. The position taken by the two relative to the rehabilitation of Louisiana foreshadowed this. The present difficulty is quite certainly the outgrowth of personal feeling. Mr. Sumner, in virtue of his position as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, claimed and was accorded the appointment of a Minister to England. He also sought to govern our foreign policy. His Minister was a failure, and his policy was not accepted. As a result, the man who advocated the purchase of the wild incheres of Alaska opposes with virulence and personal abuse the acquisition of one of the finest islands of the Antilles. The result of this cannot be doubtful. The people believe in the honesty and peaceful purpose of President Grant, and Mr. Sumner must make amends for his rudences or lose caste and influence."

The Houston Union claims that the present Republican Administration in Texas is in full harmony with the National Administration. It says: "Since Senator M. C. Hamilton has declared open war against the Administration of Gov. Davis and the Republican party of Texas, he has sought to create the impression that the Republican journals and the Republican Administration of this State are at war with President Grant on the question of frontier defense and the Indian policy. If there is one State Republican party in the whole South which is more unanimously and enthustastically devoted to the Administration of President Grant than any other, from the Governor down to every individual of the rank and file, it is the Republican party of Texas. The Republican journals of Texas were among the very first, if not the very first, to indicate a preference for Gen. Grant as the chosen leader of the Republican hosts in the Presidential contest of 1872; and the expression of this opinion in their columns, as well as a vigorous and enthusiastic vindication of his Administration, have been continued without abatement to this very day. Gov. Davis has never been opposed to the present policy, or to any other policy of the Federal Government, with regard to the management of our Indian troubles and the protection of the frontier. He has not now, and never had, the least disposition to dictate to the Federal Government in relation to these matters. All that he has aimed at, from first to last, has been to provide for the immediate protection of our frontier people." the Administration of Gov. Davis and the Republican

The Toledo Commercial speaks of the recent contest in the Senate as follows: "We think that a careful perusal of the report of Mr. Summer's assault on rui perusal of the report of air. Summer's assault on President Grant must satisfy any candid, intelligent man that that demonstration was not the result of unmixed sense of public duty. If he thinks the annexation of San Domingo not desirable on public grounds, he should meet the issue frankly and squarely. He had no right, as a Senator, discussing the proposition of another member, to make of it an occasion for attacking the Exceutive, as he then did. The violence of Mr. Summer's spirit is shown where he talks about "humanity insuited," prace imperited," the "weak and down-trodden wronged," and the "African race rudely assailed" by President Grant in this San Domingo matter—all of which charges appear simply as the rhetoric of an excited orator, and without a particle of proof to sustain them. It is entirely safe to say that no friend of the Administration, or gentieman disposed to deal fairly with it, could be led into the use of language and manifestation of spirit like those here found. It is fully evident that it is San Domingo less, and the President more, that was aimed at in that most surprising outburst. Entit it is in the final vote of the Senate, after a continuous session and discussion of 11 hours, that Mr. Summer met his most signal disappointment and defeat. A more complete rebuke to him could hardly be imagined, and he may very properly consider the question whether, after such expression of his colleagues and political friends, he can do himself greater credit than by vacating the place which thus brings him into collision with both the Republican Senate and the Republican Administration." President Grant must satisfy any candid, intelligent mat

The Detroit Post remarks that the victory upon which the Missouri Bolters congratulated them selves is proving a serious matter to those who won it. "It has brought the Democrats uppermost, and it is they who are counting up the gains and profits of the can who are counting up the gains and profits of the campaign. They confess that they pulled the chestnuts out of the fire for the bolting Republicans, but they say that instead of being cats they are salamanders; they were not the least but burned, and they intend to eat the chestnuts themselves. Mr. Brown, the Governor-elect, apparently realizes that this is about the way that the game now stands, and judging from his recent eulogies of the Democratic party, he means to have them for his partners at the next deal. And so The St. Louis Republican (Democratic) kindly patronizes The Democrat (Republican), they were worthy of the donations of the benevotent persons who desire to establish a Christian Republic in Africa. The proportion of church members among them was remarkable. Some of church members among them was remarkable. Some of the quartet; and then goes back still further to sing "Hallelujah!" at the triumphs of the faith! A little wholesome reverence for a great composer might have saved him from these gross absurdities. It is quite safe and in the same breath thanks it for its assistance and curses it for its demand for further consideration. It is the old story of the fox at the bottom of the well asking the goat to come down and get a drink of water. The goat thereupen tumbled in headlong, and as he did so the fox scrambled up over his horns and body, and left the poor goat at the bottom of the well." Here is an illustration of the way in which the fox now talks to the goat. The Republican says: "We are not willing to forget the good The Democrael did in the late canvass. It aided us to smash its own party and reinstate the Democraey, and that, too, at a particule sacrifice of its own power and profits, which it has never ceased to regret, and which we shall never cease to be grateful for. It made a predigious mistake in its calculations of the outcome of the election; it thought the Democraets would be absolutely overpowered with its 'magnanimity,' and would join its new party with a rush. But the thankless 'copperheads' didn't."

PAGE'S PORTRAIT OF SHAKESPEARE.-Ex-Senator Wall of New-Jersey, in a recent lecture on "Shakespeare, His Home and Genius," thus alludes to this remarkable portrait:

"It makes one sad as he reads the date upon the monu ment upon the wall just above the gray stone slab, to think that almost in the prime of life (for there were at least 20 years of power in the man) was the poet snatched away. What Hamlets and Lears the world has missed! Nor let us forget the bust above the monument. It is a face of exceeding calm and quiet; and while it does not fully realize Shakespeare's countenance, there is about it something which makes us feel that there is an approach to it, if it is not exactly like. This bust was sculptured by Gerard Johnson, one of the best artists of his day, only seven years after Shakespeare's death; but, even then, it could only have been taken from memory; and we must, therefore, regard it as the only likeness we possess of the great dramatist.

"Only a year ago, while sitting for a portrait to Page (one of our leading artists in the City of New-York), I was shown photographs taken from a plaster cast of the face of the poet immediately after death. The tradition runs that this cast was taken by an intimate friend of the poet, who afterward removed to Germany, carrying the cast with him; and in his family it remained as a precious heir loom for many generations. Recently, it found its way to London, where it has caused a great commotion among Shakespearian scholars. Page, who is a ost devoted worshiper at the Shakespearian shrine, is now engaged in a labor of love, painting a portrait from a bust of Shakespeare he has molded from photographs of this ancient plaster cast. In these photographs, presenting front, back, and side views of the head, 'the dome of thought, the spaince of the soul,' that imagnificent skull and brow of Shakespeare appear grand enough to fill to the full the measure of our (conception of the poet. The front view of this cast resembles both the monument bust and the Chandos portrait, but magnified and exalited. It realizes more completely my idea of how Shakespeare ought to have looked."

SELF-RESPECTING LABOR-A LADY WASHERWO-

Mrs. Celia Burleigh, writing from Cincinnati of experiences on her lecturing tour, says in The Woman's Apropos of cleanliness, another incident of my visit to

Apropos of cleanliness, another incident of my visit to Cincinnati recurs to me. Having occasion to employ a laundress, I was directed to a street and number a little removed from Fourth street. On going to the place indicated, I found myself before a quite handsome brick residence, with an appearance of taste and prosperity about it that made me question if I had not mistaken the directions. But no; above the door was the number I was in quest of, and on the well polished door-plate was the name. Still a little puzzled, I rang the bell, which was answered by a pretty mulatto cirl, tastefully dressed, and lady-like in appearance. "Is there any one here who takes in washing?" I asked somewhat diffidently. "There is; will you walk in !" was the reply in a voice which indicated both culture and refinement. Entering, I found myself in a hand-somely furnished parior, with a cheerful fire glowing in the grate, and an open piano standing opposite. Above the mantel-piece hung a handsomely-framed portrait of President Lincoln, on one side of the room was a steel engraving of the reading of the Emancipation Proclamation, on the other a full-length photograph of Frederick Douglas. Books strewed the table, and house plants flourished in the windows. My observations were cut short by the entrance of a dignified colored woman, who announced herself as Mrs. C—, the person I was in quest of. My business was speedily transacted, and, though I would gladly have lingered and entered into conversation, I felt more completely held in check by this stately, self-respecting woman, more straid of taking what might seem an unwarranted liberty, than if I had been in the presence of some leader of fashionable society. I learned afterward that Mrs. C— was a widow, who with the preceds of her own industry had begin the house in which she lived, and that her daughter—the young girl who had let me in—was a music-teacher, with as many pupils as she could attend to. I must say that no "Interior" by Eastman Johnson ever gave me so much food for

MR. MACY'S EXPLANATION. To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sin: My attention has been called to various articles in the daily papers in relation to the recent arrest made in my store. Some of the articles are, I doubt not unintentionally, calculated to do me a great wrong and injustice. I regret as much as any one can that any innocent person should be wrongly accused, directly or indirectly, by me. I was compelled several years since, for the protection of my customers no less than myself, to secure the services of a skilled police detective. During some days of the last week there have been at times more than five thousand people in the store. Thieves and pickpockets are always drawn by such crowds. I wish only for the arrest and punishment of those common enemies of our kind. Of over 100 who have been arrested at my store for stealing, the case of Mrs. Phelps is the first to which any exception has been taken. Itry to keep only honest, truthful, capable, and civil clerks, and in all things have tried, and shall continue to try, to do everything in my power, not only for the convenience and comfort of my customers, but for their protection both from insuit and rudeness on the part of my employés, and from the designs of any ovil-disposed persons not in my employ.

Should a mistake occur at any time no person can regret it more than myself. Respectfully.
